American Institute of Architects Baton Rouge had the honor of presenting awards to four projects completed by four different firms this year at the 2011 Rose Awards Gala last Friday evening. Architects, designers, contractors, project owners, and developers all gathered Friday evening to showcase the submitted projects and to see who would win. While AIA Baton Rouge members voted for their one favorite out of twenty-seven submissions, Mayor Kip Holden honored all by presenting that award to the winner. Corporate sponsors include such companies as Acadian Custom Installations, Baton Rouge Business Report, Lincoln Builders of Baton Rouge, and many more.

Winners are as follows:

- Members Choice: “Republic Finance Building” by Coleman Partners Architects
- Gold Rose Award: “St. John the Baptist Catholic Church” by Cockfield Jackson Architects
- Silver Rose Award: “Louisiana 19th Judicial District Courthouse” by Post Architects
- Rose Award: “Holly and Smith Architects Office Entry, Lobby, and Conference Room Renovation” by Holly and Smith Architects
